1. STRATEGIC COMMITMENT TO ACCOUNTABILITY

1.1. Statement from the most senior decision-maker of the organization (e.g. Executive Director, Secretary General, CEO, Chair, or equivalent senior position) about the relevance of accountability to the organization's strategy in the short, medium and long term.

The year 2014 was a reasonably peaceful one in Bangladesh. Women in the villages and slums – farmers, factory workers and entrepreneurs – continued their steady advance down the path out of poverty, with BRAC and other civil society organisations playing a supporting role.

Despite its dysfunctional politics, Bangladesh remains a role model for other lower-income countries. In 2015, we are likely to meet five out of the eight millennium development goals (MDGs) set by the UN at the turn of the millennium. This is a testament to what people can achieve with limited resources.

The byword at BRAC is opportunity. When women and girls in poverty have opportunities to take control of their lives, we see them doing what it takes to end poverty for themselves, their families and others around them. At BRAC, we create the enabling environment and offer whatever tools are needed to make this happen, be it community-based healthcare, micro loans, savings accounts, education for children, legal and human rights empowerment, social justice interventions, enterprises, and even a full-fledged university.

Our work with the ultra poor, those who are too poor to access most of these interventions, has drawn particular attention. Over two years, an intensive programme graduates the poorest out of ultra poverty through a combination of one-on-one coaching, asset grants, cash payments, training and healthcare leading to social integration. About 95 per cent graduate from a strictly defined category of ultra poverty, maintaining their upward trajectory even four years after they leave the programme

Responding to others' interest, we are now ready to share the graduation methodology. Inspired by BRAC's programme, others have already used similar approaches with success in at least eight countries. Several governments in sub-Saharan Africa have expressed interest in incorporating graduation methodologies into existing cash transfer programmes. We are advocating for more adaptations while offering technical assistance and immersion visits to facilitate implementation and promote learning. While not a panacea for poverty, I believe graduation programmes should play a role in the goal of bringing the global extreme poverty rate below three per cent by 2030.

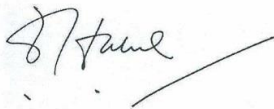

This work would not have been possible without the support of our donors. I want to call particular attention to the strategic partnership arrangement with the UK's Department for International Development and the Australian Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade, which chose in 2011 to partner with BRAC on a five-year plan that went far beyond previous donor-NGO relationships. Based on shared goals rather than donor demands, this relationship has given us the flexibility necessary to allocate funding where it is needed most. This kind of equal collaboration between donors and a civil society organisation represents a new paradigm in development financing, and it has worked exceedingly well, with all parties able to show positive results.

The strategic partnership arrangement has allowed BRAC to expand into new areas and adapt to new realities, including increasing urbanisation. Although BRAC was born as a rural development organisation, in 2014 we adopted an urban strategy to address the fact that 57 per cent of Bangladesh's projected population of 200 million will live in cities by 2050, more than twice the present number. Urban slums, filled with migrants from the countryside seeking new economic opportunities, present new challenges.

We remain proud of our achievements but mindful of our shortcomings. In health, Bangladesh is likely to meet the MDG target of 144 maternal deaths per 100,000 live births or come very close to this; in BRAC intervention areas in urban slums, we have shown what is possible by bringing that rate down to 116. Yet, as a member of the Lead Group for the Scaling-Up Nutrition movement, I take special note of the fact that Bangladesh remains among the 36 highest-burden countries when it comes to malnutrition. Mothers and their children here are among the least nourished in the world.

With renewed commitment to address these issues, BRAC has joined the CHARGE pledge, led by the Brookings Institution, to greatly expand access, safety and quality in education for girls. We convened the first annual national Girl Summit, obtaining pledges from the private sector (including the garment industry), media and others to advance the girls' empowerment agenda.

These are some of the barriers we see ahead of us. With strong partnerships, a renewed focus on technology, innovation and urban development challenges, I remain confident we can give people the tools they need to overcome them.

2. ORGANIZATIONAL PROFILE

2.1 Name of the organization

BRAC

2.2 Primary activities (e.g. advocacy, research, service provision, capacity building, humanitarian assistance, etc.). How do primary activities support attainment of your mission and strategic goals?

BRAC's mission is to empower people and communities in situations of poverty, illiteracy, disease and social injustice. BRAC's intervention aims to achieve large scale, positive changes through economic and social programs that enable women and men to realize their potential. Over 115,177 BRAC workers touch the lives of an estimated 137 million people in 11 countries, using a wide array of tools such as education, healthcare, microfinance, legal rights training and more to achieve BRAC's mission and strategic goals.

BRAC has diversified programme activities, of which major programmes in Bangladesh are:

Agriculture and Food Security: Agriculture and Food Security Programme of BRAC aims to contribute in achieving food security and reduction of hunger and malnutrition through increased environmentally sustainable and economically profitable agricultural production. Applied and adaptive research is conducted to develop better crop varieties and improved production technologies for higher agricultural productivity. The programme is operating farmer participatory experiments for technology validation and fast track diffusion of cutting edge agricultural and aquaculture technologies in two ecologically adverse geographic regions of Bangladesh. Presently the programme is operating its activities in the 50 sub-districts under 12 districts of Bangladesh. Programme has reached 31,082 participants from January to December 2014. The programme distributed 13,862 Metric Ton of seeds in 2014.

Integrated development Program: This program is launched in 2012 to address the needs of the most marginalized and deprived communities who are socially and geographically excluded from mainstream development interventions in certain areas of Bangladesh. This is combination of 10 components (Education, Health, Wash, Targeting ultra-poor, Community empowerment program, Human rights and legal aids, Gender & Justice, Agricultural and food security, Safe migration and Microfinance) that BRAC are currently implemented in other areas of Bangladesh. In 2014, BRAC can able to provide integrated service to 0.8 million marginalized people.

Microfinance: The programme is a critical component of BRAC's holistic approach to support livelihoods. As of December 2014, BRAC has 4.5 million borrowers of microfinance loan and USD 1.2 billion loan portfolio.

Enterprises & Investments: The BRAC model consists of a network of development programmes, enterprises and investments. About half the surpluses generated by our social enterprises help fund the expenditure of our development programmes in Bangladesh, while the rest is reinvested in the enterprises themselves. BRAC's investments ensure financially profitable investments in socially responsible areas, such as low income housing, small and medium enterprise loans, information technology and clean development mechanisms. Dividends from our investments support the financial health of the organisation and reduce our dependency on donors. Enterprises include Aarong (retail shop), nursery, fisheries enterprises, poultry enterprises, solar enterprises etc. and investments are BRAC tea estate, BRAC Bank, BRAC EPL Investments Ltd., bKash Limited etc.

Targeting the Ultra Poor: The programme focuses on improving the socioeconomic situation of those at the base of the economic pyramid. Living in extreme poverty, this group struggles to meet the minimal dietary requirements and faces difficulty to reach mainstream anti-poverty programmes like microfinance. As of December 2014, trainings were provided to 1.59 million ultra poor women and 570,950 ultra poor women received assets.

Disaster Environment and Climate Change: This program enhances BRAC's institutional capacity to response to natural disaster. It builds competence at the community level on disaster preparedness, and increases coping abilities with preventive and adaptive strategies. Until 2014 under this programme BRAC trained 200,010 community members and various other stakeholders on how to respond in different phases of a disaster.

Health, Nutrition and Population: The programme aims to improve reproductive, maternal, neonatal, and child health and nutritional status, reduce vulnerability to communicable diseases, combat non-communicable diseases and enhance the quality of life. BRAC has 105,736 front line Community Health Workers. A number of 1,234,044 women received 4 or more ante-natal care visit and 841,278 women received 3 or more post-natal care visit in 2014. Malaria patients treated 31,776 and tuberculosis case detected and treated 124,286 in 2014.

Water, Sanitation & Hygiene: The programme provides sustainable and integrated services in rural and isolated areas, breaking the cycle of contamination caused by unsanitary latrines, unclean water and unsafe hygiene practices. As of December 2014, the programme served 36.9 million people with hygienic latrines and 2.3 million people with safe drinking water.

Education: BRAC schools are designed to give a second chance education to disadvantaged children who have been left out of the formal education system or never enrolled due to extreme poverty, displacement or discrimination, geographically remote and hard to reach areas and population. BRAC runs 42,678 (including ESP) schools with 1.3 million children in Bangladesh. So far 10.96 million children have been graduated from BRAC schools.

Migration: BRAC started an initiative to promote migrants rights and ensure their safety. Under this project prospective migrants receive information on safe migration, remittance management, social and legal aid support, skills training and social arbitration. Support for reintegration is also being provided to returnee migrants workers. As of December 2014, 1.8 million people had received migration related information.

Advocacy for social changes: This program designs strategies based on rigorous research on social issues and government policies. It brings together stakeholders, from top government officials to those at the grass roots, to participate in reforming old and formulating new policies that drive progress on the millennium development goals.

Community Empowerment: The programme empowers the poor, especially women, by mobilizing communities to translate awareness into action. As of December 2014, the programme built 13,802 Community Institution (Polli Shomaj) and 20,162 shows are staged by Popular Theatre Group.

Gender Justice and Diversity: The programme works simultaneously within BRAC and the community to achieve gender equality. Through intervention of this programme 90,966 school-going girls and boys, enabling them to recognize, prevent and resist incidences of sexual harassment in their lives in 2014.

2.9 Significant changes during the reporting period regarding size, structure, governance or ownership

Following are the significant changes during the year 2014:

- Performance Management System: In 2014 the HRD Department implements new Performance Management System. Organizational Structure reviewed and New Grade and salary structure implemented. HRD field offices expanded from 41 to 62 offices.
- Anti-Money Laundering: BRAC established Anti-Money Laundering policy and subsequently establishes an Anti-Money Laundering Committee consist of Executive Director, Chief Financial Officer, Director of Internal Audit, Head of Microfinance and Head of finance. Till now 13 meetings was held by the committee. A checklist was prepared and responsibility has been given to the Internal Audit department to examine the level of compliance of BRAC's Anti-Money Laundering and Combating Financing of Terrorism Policy at the field offices.
- Customer Service Assistance: In 2014, BRAC recruited customer service assistants in microfinance for almost half of its branches. The customer service assistants, who act as a first point of contact for any questions or concerns, also deliver interactive financial education training in an environment that promotes confidence and understanding. Over 800,000 clients received a short orientation prior to taking a loan, and 85,000 vulnerable clients received an intensive financial literacy course. This is the first initiative of its kind in the country, and BRAC is working with other MFIs to promote stronger measures for client protection in the Bangladesh microfinance industry at large.
- Remittance Loan: This year, BRAC launched remittance loans, which provide financial flexibility households where a family member is employed overseas. So far, the product has supported 1,500 households. This service complements migration loans available to men and women to help cover the costs of finding employment abroad. Migration loans reached 64,000 households in 2014.
- Ownership of SafeSave: BRAC has taken ownership of SafeSave— an organisation that offers highly flexible microcredit and micro-savings products to poor people living in Dhaka's slums. SafeSave is a unique initiative that enables poor people to make tiny deposits of savings and loan re-payments via a collection officer who visits clients' homes on a daily basis. In 2014, SafeSave served 17,000 clients, including 8,000 borrowers.
- Credit Shield Life Insurance: This year BRAC started piloting credit shield life insurance, which offers financial support for a client's household if a client or their spouse dies.

- Financial Diaries Research Project: BRAC launched the financial diaries research project, which seeks to build an in-depth understanding of the financial lives of the poor by tracing the daily financial transactions of respondents.
- Online Shopping: Aarong launched its new online shopping website this year, setting a milestone for e-commerce in Bangladesh. The website will connect rural artisans with global consumers, making products available beyond just Aarong's retail stores. Currently catering only to domestic consumers, the website will go international by the end of 2015.
- TUP Nutrition Programme: TUP-Nutrition is a pilot programme being implemented in collaboration with the World Food Programme and International Food Policy Research Institute. It focuses on preventing under-nutrition in the first 1,000 days amongst children from the 592 poorest households in two sub-districts in Satkhira. It tests the assumption of lifecycle targeting and mainstreaming nutrition interventions into livelihood development programmes. The pilot will also address the mutually reinforcing challenges of under-nutrition and poverty among the ultra poor.
- M-relief and Crowd Funding: In partnership with BRAC's social innovation lab, DECC launched two projects using technology to improve post-disaster relief activities. One project explores using a digital voucher system to provide relief items and medical support to affected individuals more quickly following a disaster. The other uses mobile money as a new platform for crowd funding; this is a transparent mechanism for the public to easily and directly donate towards our relief activities.
- BRAC Health Security Programme: HNPP has initiated an alternative financing mechanism called BRAC Health Security Programme (bHSP). It is a community-based health security scheme aligned with the national health financing strategy to achieve universal health coverage in Bangladesh. It was launched in August 2014 in Gazipur.
- Interactive Multimedia Content: BRAC signed a Memorandum of Understanding with the Ministry of Posts, Telecommunication and IT to develop interactive multimedia content for the national primary curriculum (class 1-5). This aims to ensure quality education with better clarity of lessons for both students and teachers. BRAC also collaborated with the British Council, GSM Association and Robi Axiata Limited to create an English learning platform for adolescents using mobile phones.
- HIV and AIDS Education in Primary Schools: BRAC partnered with the NGO PIACT Bangladesh to provide HIV and AIDS education to students of class 5 in BRAC's primary and other BRAC-supported schools.

- Intervention to Eradicating Child Marriage: BRAC's Community Empowerment Programme started a pilot intervention in partnership with the local government in Badarganj, a sub-district of Rangpur district, to test approaches to eradicating child marriage. This involves a set of coordinated activities through multi-stakeholder engagement, including the polli shomaj, community leaders, local youth, marriage officials, journalists and local administration. Based on its success, this pilot may be replicated in other CEP working areas.
- Launching of Maya Apa: Gender Justice and Diversity with BRAC's Information and communication technology and social innovation lab partnered with Mayalogy Ltd and launched the BRAC-Maya project in July 2014. This aims to ensure access to information regarding maternal, reproductive and adolescent health rights, sexual harassment, and violence. This web-based project introduced a mobile app named 'Maya Apa'. It provides an interactive and anonymous platform for women and girls in Bangladesh to seek advice from specialists and also encourage peer learning.
- Children with Legal Assistance: Human Rights and Legal Aid Services partnered with the Ministry of Social Welfare in the juvenile justice sector, providing children with legal assistance to help them secure bail, and using BRAC's countrywide network to locate their families. In 2014, HRLS released 88 children from juvenile development centres, providing 125 more with additional legal assistance and reuniting 60 children (who were declared 'vagrants') with their families.

PERFORMANCE INDICATORS

I. Programme Effectiveness

NGO1 Involvement of affected stakeholder groups to inform the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of policies and programmes.

Programme Designing:

- In case of any programme design, BRAC follows the bottom-up approach. The opinions of the programme participants and the community people are taken into consideration during the programme design.
- BRAC's social enterprises have always been established on a drive to find alternate livelihoods for the rural poor. These enterprises are not started simply as business endeavours; instead, BRAC's purpose is poverty alleviation. The establishment of BRAC Dairy can be an example. Despite the abundance of milk production, the demand for milk in villages was not enough to generate a decent income for dairy farmers. A lack of refrigeration systems resulted in frequent wastage of large amounts of unsold milk. As a solution, BRAC established BRAC Dairy to collect milk from rural dairy farmers at fair price across the country and sell them to the urban market as processed milk and milk products. In essence, BRAC Dairy channels milk from rural areas into urban areas while channeling urban money into rural areas. This enterprise cross-collaborates with BRAC Artificial Insemination, another social enterprise, which provides dairy farmers with access to better quality breeds of cows. This enterprise has increased the income of many farmers, because better breeds provide higher yield of milk.

Ensuring service quality:

The officials of the programmes regularly meet with the respective programme participants. The programme officials hear and take note of the feedback from all the programme participants and gives continuous efforts to ensure the best services.

Each programme has internal monitoring team to ensure the quality of services. Besides, there is a separate Monitoring Department which works independently to regularly check the service quality of programme delivery on random basis and they present quarterly report to the senior management. On the basis of that, the programmes take necessary steps to rectify the process of delivery and ensure effectiveness.

Reporting on results:

The Strategic Partnership Arrangement (SPA) is between BRAC, the UK government and the Australian government. The SPA is based on shared goals, clear results and mutual accountability. The SPA results framework is agreed by the Strategic Partners and BRAC is committed to the Strategic Partners to report on the programme results it achieves on 6 monthly basis.

The Strategic Partnership Arrangement (SPA) is jointly reviewed by BRAC and contributing development partners on an annual basis. The process, TORs and composition of the review team are agreed by BRAC and contributing development partners. These reviews examine progress towards the objectives set out, and the extent to which the results defined in the results framework are being achieved.

To meet these agreed requirements, the partners have developed a Results Framework with four levels:

Level 1: National Millennium Development Goals (These goals have been agreed at national and international level, and information on goals, indicators and targets have been obtained from the United Nations Development Programme.)

Level 2: Programmes (Provide information on outcomes, indicators, risks and assumptions for BRAC Programmes. Logframes for each project in each programme have also been prepared and are available.)

Level 3: Institutions (Provide information on outcomes, indicators, risks and assumptions for strategic areas)

Level 4: Tracking the Partnership (The partners jointly initiates a research process for documenting the outcomes and benefits of the SPA.)

Research and Evaluation Division (RED):

BRAC has an independent Research and Evaluation Division (RED) that plays a critical role in development intervention, monitoring progress and conducting impact assessment studies. The department reviews the progress of projects and communicates the finding with relevant departments. It provides an analytical basis for BRAC's programmatic decisions, fine-tuning it for better performance and making development efforts evidence-based, effective, and community-sensitive. RED also helps us with ways to scale up the identify new areas of interventions. The department shares lessons learnt by publishing reports and working papers.

All the above matters are guided by BRAC policies and procedures. If required BRAC has changes and updates its policies and procedures based on feedbacks from its stakeholders time to time. For example, BRAC has established risk management department to evaluate its program risks and try to reshape the programs according to risk ranking.

NGO4 Measures to integrate gender and diversity into program design and implementation, and the monitoring, evaluation, and learning cycle.

BRAC Gender Justice and Diversity (GJD) programme works to integrate gender justice into its programmes and eliminate gender inequality from the society. GJD works to ensure that no stakeholder is excluded from the organization's work due to e.g. disability, ethnicity, poverty, illiteracy, age, and gender. GJD works simultaneously within the organisation and with the communities. It strives for equality, diversity and inclusiveness within BRAC; improves gender relations and empowers women at the household level across many of BRAC's programmes; and works to ensure that girls and boys are equitably nurtured to their full potential from pre-primary through secondary school. It helps to build a gender-friendly working environment. It also promote gender equality and work to prevent violence against women at the national level by influencing government policies and agendas, organizing public forums and events, and leveraging national and international alliances for gender justice. GJD also works towards integrating gender into programmes.

Goal

Promote gender equality, empowerment and inclusiveness within BRAC as well as within the wider community.

BRAC has adopted a 'zero tolerance' policy to any form of sexual harassment and abuse at the work place. GJD formulated a Sexual Harassment Elimination (SHE) Policy in 2004 - one of the firsts in Bangladesh to address the sexual harassment and take punitive actions in organizational level. Later it was upgraded and reprinted in 2008. BRAC is committed to follow the honorable High Court Division's (HCD) guideline against sexual harassment that was promulgated on May 14, 2009. As part of the commitment, the SHE policy has been reviewed addressing the organizations present concern. We utilize community media such as Popular Theatre and Community Radio to disseminate information to rural communities and mobilize them on a wide range of issues that affect their lives. Popular Theatre is an effective advocacy tool for disseminating information to the communities, particularly to the illiterate, through entertainment. In 2014, our Popular Theatre Group staged 20,162 shows.

BRAC engages with the local government to improve local governance through capacity building and institutional strengthening, gender sensitization, formation of forums of elected

BRAC understand the importance of coordinating and working with other actors. Developing partnership with other actors enriches knowledge and often results in greater output. Some organizations are expert in certain services. Working in collaboration with these organizations help to increase knowledge and effectiveness of project/ programme. As per BRAC's strategy, BRAC chose different programs and try to implement those programs with collaboration with other partners. BRAC also try to pursue with other actors to develop new programs based on BRAC's long term strategy. II. Financial Management

NGO7 Resource allocation, tracking and control

Budget is prepared annually with inputs from all programmes. Finance & Audit committee reviews and recommends the budget for approval. Then Governing body approves the budget. Resources are allocated according to the budget.

Funds have been classified within two categories - temporarily restricted and unrestricted.

- Temporarily restricted assets - Assets subject to donor-imposed restrictions that permit BRAC to use or expend the assets as specified. The restrictions are satisfied either by the passage of time and/or by actions of BRAC. When donor restrictions expire, that is, when a time restriction ends or a purpose restriction is fulfilled, any balances of temporarily restricted net assets are either returned to donors in accordance with donor agreements or utilized consequent to donor and management agreements on a temporarily restricted or unrestricted basis. In cases where restrictions expire, it is BRAC's policy to effect the reclassification of assets from temporarily restricted net assets to unrestricted net assets via transfers within the balance sheet.
- Unrestricted net assets - Net assets that are not subject to any donor-imposed restrictions or which arise from internally funded activities. This category of net assets include amongst others, amounts designated by BRAC for income generating activities, programme support enterprises, micro-financing activities and self-financing social development activities.

BRAC's Head Office overhead expenses are allocated to various projects and programmes at a range of 7% to 10% of their costs, based on agreement with donors or management's judgment.

III. Environmental Management

EN16 Report the total of direct and indirect greenhouse gas emissions by weight at the organization level.

and

EN18 Initiatives to reduce greenhouse gas emissions at the organization level and reductions achieved.

EN26 Initiatives to mitigate environmental impacts of activities and services.

BRAC does not have any project which is directly related to greenhouse gas emissions. But BRAC started solar in 1998 as one of BRAC's green enterprises. BRAC's solar enterprise supplies an eco-friendly renewable source of energy to people in rural Bangladesh who live in off-grid areas. The power grid that supplies the greatest proportion of electricity in Bangladesh to date does not cover all areas of the country. There are many rural areas that are still not connected to the public power supply and thus, irrespective of affordability, electricity is inaccessible to many people in these areas. As a result, the affected communities would have to limit many of their activities to those hours of the day with daylight.

BRAC started Recycled Handmade Paper (RHMP) in 2000 with an aim to help prevent environmental degradation by targeting the corporate urban market in Bangladesh to recycle their paper waste. Today BRAC RHMP operates as one of BRAC's three Green Enterprises, and produces synthesized paper products from recycled materials, such as, used papers, stalks of wheat, hay, water hyacinth, caustic soda, dye, barley, glue and cotton. BRAC also has nursery enterprise.

V. Responsible Management of Impacts on Society

SO1 Impact of activities on the wider community.

BRAC is committed to empower communities in situations of poverty, illiteracy, disease and social injustice. Most of BRAC projects work towards betterment of community. Various departments prepared projects and submitted it to Executive Management Committee (EMC) for approval. EMC review the project and send it to the Governing body with recommendation for approval. Then board review the project and approve it.

BRAC work very closely with communities to design the program which will bring betterment for the poor. BRAC conducts surveys before designing project with the help of staff and community. BRAC spends time with donor for projects which are financed by donor fund. BRAC signed agreement with donor regarding various aspects of the projects. BRAC implement the project in few areas as pilot project, monitor the progress and conduct impact assessment whether the project is fruitful for betterment of poor. If needed the project is re-designed according to community requirement. After project is implemented, monitoring department conducts periodic analysis to determine whether the key activities are being carried out as planned and whether they are having expected outcomes.

Community members are selected by community and BRAC together. Community members represent the voice of the whole community. Most of our community members are women. Programmes that involve community members are below:

BRAC has a programme name Community Empowerment who works to empower the community. One of our basic approaches strengthens rural communities by building community-based institutions (polli shomaj) to raise awareness and the voices of poor, while creating a platform for rural civil society and the local government to work together. We strengthen the process by addressing violence against women to create safe communities for women and children and increase the poor's access to information by using interactive communication tools. BRAC also works with community to eliminate gender inequality from the society. Such as, MEJNIN (Meyeder Jonno Nirapad Nagorikotto - safe citizenship for girls) project built awareness and confidence of students and community members to protect and protest against sexual harassment at public places. For its remarkable impact, GJD's gender equality action learning project received the Good Practice Award by the Ministry of Women & Child Affairs of Bangladesh and UNFPA.

BRAC's human rights and legal aid services creates an enabling environment for vulnerable and excluded communities to seek justice through formal and informal systems. We have mobilized communities by arranging workshops to sensitize local community leaders on human rights issues, so that the benefits of our justice services can be sustained beyond our intervention period. Participation in our local community leaders' workshops has increased from 330,074 participants in 2013, to 344,272 participants in 2014.

Under health, nutrition and population programme community health workers creates an effective bridge between underserved communities and formal healthcare systems including BRAC-run health facilities, for improving access, coverage, and quality of health services in communities across the country. Until 2014 under disaster, environment and climate change programme BRAC trained 200,010 community members and various other stakeholders on how to respond in different phases of a disaster. BRAC's launched integrated development programme (IDP) aims to address the need of the most marginalized and deprived communities who are socially and geographically excluded from the mainstream development interventions in specific areas of Bangladesh.
